Остовек 30, 1813, GENTLEMEN; Fully concuring in the reort and resolutions adopted by the Repub ican meeting hold to-day by the politicariends of General Cass, I had a wish to nake a few remarks, but had no opportunity of so doing before the adjournment. What I intended to say then, I take the liberty of now writing to you, allowing you to make such use of it as you may think

Until recently, I was in favor of Van Buren being again taken up for Presidentforming my opinion principally from the tone of the Republican newspapers, and those who consider themselves leading poli ticians. But, of late, I have mixed a great deal among the people, and have taken pains to find out their opinions about all the presidential candidates; and my information amounts to this: that though there are many who would be glad to run Mr. Van Buren again, because they think he was badly treated in 1840, yet the current of opinion seems to be gathering ground that he cannot te elected by the people; and rather than to see the election of President carried to the House of Congress, he would withdraw from the contest, from the strict language of his letter to the Indiana conven-The prejudices and ill-founded reports

THE DANCE OF JUSTICE: -- A curious incident occurred, during a ball given at Cork in honor of the British Association, which exemplified the adroitness of the Irish police. A number of the swell mob honored Cork with a visit, some of whom came express from London, and among them several female practitioners. The crowedball-room afforded ample field for displaying their skill. An inspector of police, dressed in ball costume, having observed one of these ladies appropriating a gentleman's purse, procured an introduction to the fair one, obtained the honor of her hand for the next quadrille. The gentleman, of course, in the pause of the dance, "did the agreeable" to the lady; she, on her part lavishing mirer. > SLAVERY IN AMERICA AND IN EUROPE.-In a recent work published at Paris, entitled "Slavery and Laberty—the existence of man and of society in harmony with the laws of the Universe," the author, Mr. Alph Ride, says:

"Slavery's great fault is the name. In France and in England, workmen and house servants are more unfortunate, more dependant, than any negro slave. I resided more than eight years in the slave section of the United States. I have compared the condition of the slaves in those States, and in the West Indies, with that of the workmen of Lile, Lyons, Rouen, Amiens, St. Guentin and Troyes. I beheld the misery of the latter, their known dependence, and despite my prejudices against slavery, I was soon convinced, that as regarded its bearing on the physical constitution, material happiness, developement of intelligence tranquility of mind, and perfection of the arts-was preferable and would produce far superior results to any afforded by the pretended liberty of French or English workmen."

From the Louisville Journal. The following lines are worthy of the genius of their authoress, whose poetry has een read with delight wherever the English language is written and spoken: PULPIT ELOQUENCE.

The day was declining-the breeze in its Had left the fair blossoms to sing on the sea, As the sun in its gorgeousness, radiant and still, Dropped down like a gem from the brow of the hill; One tremulous star in the glory of June

Came out with a smile and sat down by the moon, As she graced her blue throne with a pride of a queen-

The smiles of her leveliness gladdening the scene.

The scene was enchanting! in the distance away. Rolled the foam-crested waves of the Chesapeake bay,

While bathed in the moon light the village was seen With the church in the distance that stood on the green; The soft-sloping meadows lay brightly unrolled. With their mantles of verdure and blossom of gold,

And the earth in her beauty, forgetting to grieve, Lay asleep in her bloom on the bosom o eve.

A light hearted child, I had wandered away From the spot where my footsteps had gambol'd all day;

And free as a bird's was the song of my As I heard the wild waters exultingly roll; While lightening my heart as I sported along, With the bursts of low laughter, and snatches of song,

I struck in the pathway half worn-o'er the By the feet that went up to the worship of

As I traced its green windings, a murmur of prayer With the hymn of the worshippers rose on the air, And drawn by the links of its sweetness along, I stood unobserved in the midst of the throng. For awhile my young spirit still wandered about With the birds, and the winds, that were singing without-

But the birds, waves and zephrys, were quickly forgot In one angel like being that brithtened the spot.

In stature majestic, apart from the throng He stood in his beauty, the theme of my song! His cheeck pale with fervor-the blue orbs above

Lit up with splendors of youth and of love, Yet the heart glowing rapture that beamed from those eyes

Seemed saddened by sorrows, and chastened by sighs.

As if the young heart in its bloom had grown cold

With its loves unrequited, its sorrows untold.

Such language as his may never recall, from his tongue.

Not alone on the ear his wild eloquence stole. Enforced by each gesture, it sunk to the soul, Till it seemed that an angel had brightened the sod,

And brought to each bosom a message from God.

He spoke of the Saviour-what pictures he drew! The scenes of His sufferings rose clear on my view-The cross-the rude cross where He suffered and died-The gush of bright crimson that flowed from His side-The cup of His sorrows-the wormwood and gall-

The darkness that muntled the earth as a The garland of thorns-and the demon-like crews Who knelt as they scoffed Him-Hail King of the Jews'

He spoke, and it seemed that his statue-like form

Expanded and glowed, as his spirit grew warm; His tone so impassioned-so melting his air

As touched with compassion he ended in His hands clasped above him-his blue orbs upthrown,

Still pleading for sins that were never his

The time is long past—yet how clearly defined

That bay, church, and village, float up on my mind-I see amid azure the moon in her pride With the sweet little trembler that sat by her side: I hear the blue waves, as she wanders along,

And I tread in the pathway half-worn o'er the sod. By the feet that went up to the worship of God.

The past, the dim past, is the present to me I am standing once more mid that heart stricken throng:

A vision floats up—'tisthe theme of my song---

All glorious and bright as a spirit of air, The light like a halo encircling his hair-As I catch the same accents of sweetness and love.

He whispers of Jesus-and points us above.

How sweet to my heart is the picture I've traced! Its chain of bright fancies seemed almost effaced. Till memory, the fond one that sits in the soul.

Took up the frail links, and connected the whole-As the dew to the blossom-the bud to the bee-As the scent to the rose-are those memories to me. Round the chords of my heart they have tremblingly clung,

And the echo it gives, is the song I have AMELIA.

IRELAND.

The affairs of Ireland loccupy a large space in the journals and reviews of Great Britain. The repeal movement that awakens so much interest, was revived in 1840. at the close of the administration of Lord Melbourne. During the year 1840, there were eleven incetings on the subject at different places in Ireland. In 1841 there were five meetings. In 1842 there was but one, although there were in Dublin, weekly lecof the present year they were recommenced and at thirty one meetings since held the aggregrate number of persons present have. according to the statements in the papers. amounted to 8,910,000, being a larger number than the whole population of Ireland. have been present at many of the other meetings, and probably the numbers have been Before the strong steps of the cross and the ling with their apparatus when the boar left greatly overrated. Still all allowances being made, it displays a universal movement of the people of Ireland.

The spirit inculcated by Mr. O'Connel can be very well gathered from an extract [Hath not left to their children the spoil of from his speech at Tuain. Thre was some fracas between the police and a party of repealers, of small consequence apparent'y, in which the police were discomfitted. Mr. That he gave gallant hearts to achieve it O'Connell denounces his own friends in the following language. "But the traiters in-Ahascragh-the traitors of Ahasnrah-instsad of resorting to the law, violated it, and violated at the same time the very first principles of the repeal association, which required that there should be no tumult, no rioting, no violence of any description. He felt so strongly on this subject, that he Proclaim our fair country a NATION again. would blot Ahascrah out of the map of Ireland-refuse to allow a single one of its Then, oh! when green Erin her trust and inhabitants to be enrolled upon the books of the detestation of the people of Ireland, for principle of moral force."

his followers seems to go beyond the immediate object of repeal-to look to a separation from Great Britain. An extract from a very influential paper, contained in the Quarterly Review, is full of energy and decision. The extract is as follows-- 'And now Englishmen listen to us. Though you were to-morrow, to give us the best tenures on earth; though you were to equalize Presbyterian, Catholic and Episcopalian: though you were to give us the amplest representation in the senate; though you were to restore our absentees; disencumber us of debt, and redress every one of our fiscal wrongs and though, in addition to this you plundered the treasuries of the world to lay gold at our feet, and exhausted the resources of your genius to do us worship and honor-still we tell you, in the names of liberty and country; we tell you, in the name of enthusiastic hearts, thoughtful souls, and fearless spirits; we tell you by the past, present and the future, we would spurn your gifts, if the condition were that Ireland should remain a province. We tel! you and all whom it may concern, come what may, bribery or deceit, justice, policy orwar; -we tell you, in the name of Ireland, that Ireland shall be a nation."

The popular songs which the occasion has called forth are perhaps the best indication of the tendency of this excitement. The ardent hopes; the cherished recollections; the mournful experience; the bitter wrongs of the people of Ireland have been expressed again in verse and set to the music of the national airs of Ireland. Hitherto the exhibition of order, peace and strict attention to the laws, which have marked the public meetings in Ireland, have excited astonishment and admiration. The self command that has characterized the whole movement the overpowering influence, that belongs to calmness, moderation, self-command, uniamong a people to obtain justifiable ends, remains to be seen.

FRUIT TREE BEAR. A lady of our acquaintance took us into her garden a few days ago, where we were where it lay. - Being very busy at the time, shown an apple tree which she informed us with what purported to be a remedy for this unproductiveness, which was simply to cut from each limb, close to where it diverges from the trunk a piece of bark about four inches round the limb, and one inch in width, and immediately replace it by tying it on with a rag until it adhered again. Early in the spring she tried the tree we speak of, leaving however two or three of the limbs untouched. The result is, that it is now filled with apples which bid fair to ripen finely; but it is worthy of remark, that only fruit to be seen. The operation is very simple and as it has proved successful in Reading Gazette.

A Relic.-We have been shown a silver nedal which was found recently, in ploughing an old Indian field, near the former site of the Chehaw towns, in Lee county. From its inscription, and the figures stamped upon it, it appears to have been one of the medals that were manufactured during the administration of Mr. Jefferson, and distritheir fidelity and friendship. It is about two inches in diameter, with the miniature of Mr. Jefferson on one side, with the inscription, "Thomas Jefferson. President of the United States, A. D. 1801." On the other side is an axe and pipe, crossing each other, and the hand of a white man and Iudian clasped together, and bearing the inscription of "Peace and Friendship." Some silver coins, we understand, were found with the medal. These were no doubt the valued treasures of some chief of those towns, who left them in concealment at the time of his death .- Macon Messenger.

The matter being prepared for our newspaper; we were enabled to transfer i and convert it into the book form, and sell it at the reduced subscription price. But the volume of the reports, increased by the long session of Congress, made the cost of the paper alone nearly equal the price at which the volume was sold. The publish. ers made nothing on their work. Anticipating that the approaching session will not be shorter than the long one of the 27th Congress, we had determined to raise the price of the Congressional Globe and Appendix to $2 each; and, to justify this enhanced price, incurred new expenses to add to the value of the work. But, being impressed with the importance wof spreading information among the peo-ple, on the eye of an election fraught with such consequences to the country as that of the next Presidency, we have resolved to adhere to the old price of $1 for the Congressional Globe, and $1 for the

Dear Sir-Au agent of yours left with us ome two months since, some of your Ague and anti-billious Pills, and at the time he left them we would scarcely take them-up on any terms; Sappington's Ague Pills' be ing sold by our next door neighbor, and thought by the people not to be surpassed by any medicine for that disease then in use. But your Pills have brought out a name for themselves far surpassing that of any other medicine now in use. All agree that they never saw such a medicine before, & would have no other while they could get yours: The consequence of which is, your pills are all-gone, and at the urgent request of our friends, we write you to send us a fresh supply.
